Interiorscape

America's Only Magazine for the Interior Landscaping Business

24th Annual Competition

This year's winning interiorscape contractors, designers and suppliers exemplify creative ingenuity in answering the interests and needs of their clients.

In Hammond, IN, Harrah's Entertainment asked for the "wow factor" to impress guests at its new Horseshoe Casino. The answer: three giant multicolored koi sculptures, covered in thousands of replica flowers, that "swim" about 15 feet above the floor.

In Austin, Silicon Laboratories requested a whimsical design to reflect the company's dedication to mixing fun with business. The answer: a Southwestern-inspired combination of driftwood, assorted tropicals and succulents in the building's wall planters.

In Boston, 99 Summer Street's lobby redesign called for a polished, architectural design - installed in planters from 6 inches to 20 feet once used in a water feature. The answer: a complementary combination of replica and silk selections in hard-to-reach areas and live plants in accessible planters.

Congratulations to all of this year's winners! We look forward to seeing what's new from all of our readers next year.

This 100,000-square-foot space features a central series of planters totaling 24'x160' in each of its two wings. The client requested separate concepts for each of the planters: an "Asian Garden" theme and a "North Woods" theme.

In the Asian Garden, a dry stream bed filled with Mexican beach pebbles weaves through replica pink and white flowering dogwoods, black olives and bamboo, ending in a 50'x20' koi pond. The planter incorporates live Glauca, Sansevieria, bromeliads, peace lilies and ZZ plants.

In the North Woods planter, replica over-story trees include paper birch, scotch pine and Rocky Mountain pine. Replica autumn prairie grass, hostas and forest ferns add interest at the ground level. Live plants include mahogany, peace lilies, Glauca, pothos, liriopé and bromeliads.

"The Rouse Company Knows Great Interiorscapes Begin With Great Roots."

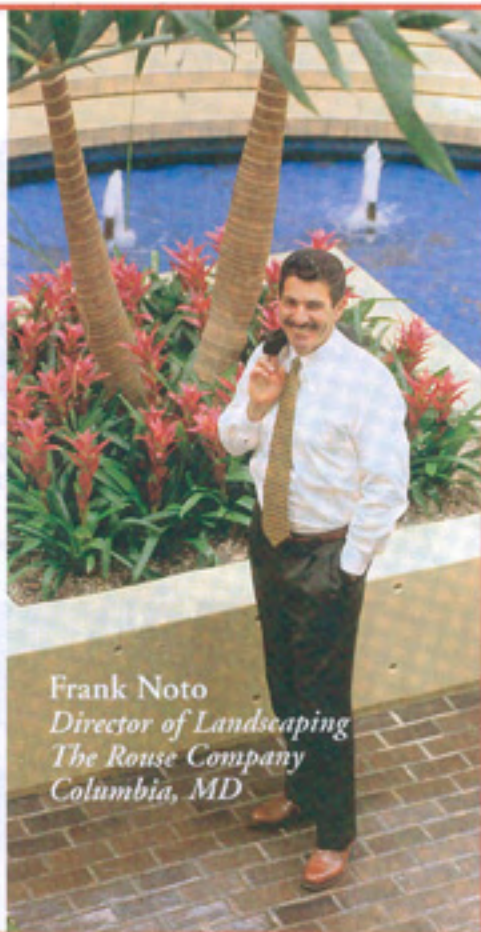

"As one of the nation's leading shopping mall and commercial property developers, we know the importance of interiorscaping to our success. Interiorscapes serve as focal points and gathering areas throughout our properties. While we specify a wide variety of foliage in our projects, we look for consistency in our growing medium. After years of successful installations, we specify SUCCESSOIL® for our interiors. SUCCESSOIL® is affordable, convenient, compatible with nursery plant media and offers minimal compaction. It has long term stability, and doesn't break down and settle like the competition.

SUCCESSOIL® is a proven performer."
